

HAVØRRED FYN
WORLDCLASS COASTAL FISHING

More than 30 years of dedicated service to the sea trout

Catching a sea trout was something of a rarity just one generation ago. Yet, Funen's streams, rivers and shallow coasts could be described as nature's blueprint for the habitat of the sea trout. Since 1990, we have worked hard to improve Funen's sea trout stocks by augmenting releases and enhancing their ascent options.

The results show that these long-term efforts are paying off. More than 500 km of waterways have been opened up for the spawning migrations of sea trout since 1990, and 25 of Funen's waterways now boast a stock of sea trout.

At the same time, we have developed opportunities for and knowledge of coastal fishing and have helped to attract yet more active sea trout anglers – all under the heading of "Havørred Fyn".

Hope to catch you on the line

Improvements of waterways

The aim of the agreement on improving the rivers and streams of Funen under the auspices of Havørred Fyn is to re-establish (sea-) trout populations in the streams of Funen.

Every municipality on the islands contributes to a joint fund. That money is then allocated to river and stream improvement projects independently of Funen's municipal borders.

More and more sea trout migrate up the rivers and streams of Funen to spawn, the trout population is now higher in the streams than it was 15 years ago, and more and larger sea trout have been caught along the coasts in recent years.

Release of sea trout smolt

One of the main activities in Sea Trout Fyn has for many years been the release of sea trout smolt. These have been reared at Fyns Laksefisk throughout the duration of the project. The exposed fish are the offspring of wild sea trout, which are caught every year by electrofishing in the Funen streams by Fynsk Laksefisk in close cooperation with several sport fishing associations and many volunteers.

Sea Trout Funen releases over 350,000 sea trout in the river mouths of several streams on Funen, Lange-land and Ærø every year. The intention with the releases is to ensure a large sea trout population, which supports recreational angling, as well as to reduce the pressure on the wild trout populations.
